KINGSMILLS HOTEL

4-Star Hotel - Inverness

The Kingsmills Hotel blends its rich history, which dates back to the 18th century, with classic and contemporary features. With a wide variety of luxurious rooms, full spa and fitness facilities and sumptuous fine dining, the Kingsmills really has it all for your getaway to the Scottish Highlands.

NAIRN

Nestled on the shores of the Moray Firth in the Highlands lies one of Scotland's finest lesser-known gems, Nairn. Widely regarded as a course design masterpiece, Nairn has been touched by famed architects with the likes of Old Tom Morris, Ben Sayers and James Braid all having a hand in the course as it stands today. With narrow fairways, rolling undulations, countless bunkers and tricky greens, golfers will need to be on their game when playing Nairn.

BRORA

Although it lacks championship yardage, make no mistake about it, Brora is a tough test of golf and one of the best courses you've never heard of. The James Braid design is often heralded as his finest work. The course itself is known for its tough, hard to read greens, gentle undulations and unobstructed views of the North Sea, with the first nine holes hugging the coastline. A round at Brora is well worth the trip and one you won't forget.

CASTLE STUART

Ranked 60th in the world by Golf Digest and three-time host of the European Tour's Scottish Open, is one of the finest modern links courses in the world. With diabolical mounds and dunes, golfers often feel like they're in a world of their own on the course. And with the wild-looking waste bunkers that line the sand capped fairways and green complexes, the sights at Castle Stuart are as natural as they come.

ROYAL DORNOCH

Wild, isolated and beautifully mesmerizing is how many would describe Royal Dornoch, especially when the gorse is in flower during the early summer. The 4th ranked course in the world also happens to be the 3rd oldest course in the world. The course itself puts an emphasis on the approach shot with its naturally raised and domed greens, the latter becoming a trademark for Dornoch's most famous son, Donald Ross.
